A. Escobar Promoted to AAM LLC Vice President of Finance

TEMPE, Ariz. (Dec. 8, 2011) – AAM LLC, a community management company that operates in Arizona and New Mexico, has promoted Adam Escobar to the position of vice president of finance.

Escobar, who joined AAM in 2005 as controller of master-planned communities, most recently was the company’s director of finance, where his duties included overseeing a team of accounting professionals that serves AAM’s homeowner association clients, as well as handling AAM’s internal financial planning and reporting duties.

In his new position, Escobar joins the AAM Executive Team and will be more involved in defining the company’s goals and measuring its financial performance.

“Adam, through his strong work ethic and financial acumen, has made a significant contribution to AAM’s growth,” said AAM President Amanda Shaw. “We continue to be impressed with his leadership skills and are excited to welcome him to the AAM Executive Team.”

Escobar holds a bachelor’s degree in business administration from Cal Poly San Luis Obispo with a concentration in accounting, as well as the Certified Management Accountant (CMA) professional designation from the Institute of Management Accountants. Escobar is a member of the Institute of Management Accountants (IMA).

About AAM

AAM’s system of community support has provided more personal attention and expert care per customer dollar than any other homeowners’ association management team for over 20 years. Better workload ratios and the longevity of AAM managers ensure each community will be managed by an industry leader who will treat it as their own. Homeowners can expect all AAM professionals to be able to answer the same 193 community management-related questions and to attend HOA meetings in person. A 24/7 emergency pager is just one example of AAM’s daily dedication to developing lasting client relationships and delivering peace of mind.
